

Examiner's Declaration

The undersigned makes this her Examiner's Declaration and states as follows:

I am over eighteen years of age and am competent in all respects to enter the testimony contained herein. I make this affidavit freely and I have personal knowledge of all facts averred herein.

In the early 2000, I watched the movie, Billy Madison. This is a movie about a young son who is trying to convince his dad that he is responsible enough to take over his father's company. In order to do so, he enrolls into school and becomes attracted to one of his teachers. During a scene in the movie, the teacher tries to persuade Billy to provide correct answers to questions by removing an article of clothing. Billy eventually participates in a Jeopardy-style academic test with his brother and wins. In the end, Billy decides to pursue his education and attend college. He passes his father's business to a longtime friend of his father and follows his hopes to become a teacher.

I hereby declare that all statements made herein of my own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the United States Code.
